DECEMBER ART SMART

‘An Afternoon at La Grande Jatte’ by Georges Seurat

Believe it or not this famous painting is painted using the technique, ‘pointillism’. Georges Seurat used only white and the six main colors of the rainbow. Instead of brushing his paints onto the canvas, he applied them in thousands of tiny dots. If you are looking for something to do with your student this winter break why not bring them to the Chicago Art Institute to see the painting in person!
